Ethiopia: Human Rights Under Siege

Journalists, human rights defenders and other civil society actors in Ethiopia operate in a legislative environment that places severe restrictions on their freedom of association, assembly and expression.

In advance of Ethiopia’s examination under the UPR in May 2014, this interactive event will provide an opportunity to discuss first-hand information from civil society experts on Ethiopia’s compliance with international human rights norms governing freedom of assembly, association and expression. The event will also offer substantive recommendations to be considered by States prior to Ethiopia’s upcoming review.
