

South Sudan: Breaking the Cycle of Impunity and Call for Transitional Justice

Side Event

UN Human Rights Council
30th Session

► Monday 28th September 2015 from 3.30pm to 5pm - Room XXII

Since the outbreak of the conflict in December 2013, the situation in South Sudan has dramatically deteriorated, and become one of the worst human rights and humanitarian crises in the world today. Unprecedented levels of violence have seen indiscriminate killings, rape, sexual violence, abduction, destruction of properties and the recruitments of children. Increasing attacks on journalists and media restriction are also of great concern. Seven journalists have already been killed this year, and a relentless of campaign of intimidation and attacks against journalists has been implemented.

This event will address the issues of accountability and transitional justice for South Sudan, and discuss ways in which the Human Rights Council can take action to fulfill its mandate. It will include a panel discussion by South Sudanese activists on the deteriorating human rights situation in South Sudan and will seek to build upon the resolution adopted under Item 2 in June 2015. The event will also coincide with the oral interim report of the High Commissioner for Human Rights to the Council and the UN Panel of Experts Interim Report on South Sudan respectively.

Panelists:

Angelina Seeka (End the Impunity)

Beny Gideon Mabor (South Sudan Law Society)

Moderator:

Sonia Tancic (FIDH)
